

Welcome to Altice Business.

Suddenlink, Optimum Business, and Lightpath have united to bring you more of the products, uptime, reliability, and support you've come to expect from us. What's more - as part of the global Altice family of companies serving nearly 2 million business customers around the world, we are investing in advanced solutions to help meet your growing needs. With a commitment to consistently improve our networks and services, we look forward to delivering an expanded lineup of solutions designed for businesses of all sizes, backed by the very best customer experiences.

We've already created more value and choice for you and your business by standardizing our robust product portfolio across our national footprint, providing you with access to the services that meet your needs, regardless of size or region. Our management team is comprised of established executives from Suddenlink, Optimum Business, and Lightpath, and is strategically aligned to each of the Altice Business core customer segments in order to bring you the personalized service your business deserves.

Founded in 2001 by telecom engineer and entrepreneur Patrick Drahi, Altice is a family enterprise that has become one of the leading global communications companies, offering a complete array of products and solutions for businesses. We are proud to be part of this global family, and ready to deliver an unparalleled experience for our customers.

We look forward to supporting your business and helping to drive your success.

Sincerely,
